There is NO need for what is effectively an energy storage complex in the Maniototo region, the environmental impact of this solar farm and energy storage facility due to fire, and weather events would be catastrophic primarily to the Maniototo region, but will also have far reaching affects far and wide with water and air. The water aquifer feeding Ranfurly and domestic water supply for a lot of farms and dwellings is taken from below the proposed solar farm, and in the event of fire the contamination of the water supply would render the water in the underground aquifer unusable for domestic supply and possibly have a major affect on any irrigation on farmland and health of stock, from the heavy toxic leaching that would occur.
We have recently purchased a house in Ranfurly with the view of retirement, as we love the pristine, clear skies and a clean environment, if this solar farm goes ahead it will majorly affect the house values in Ranfurly and would result in us having to live with that worry of this solar
